WUCHANG, 16th July. The Vicerov's educational schemes have all been advanced a stage. There are three separate departments widely differing—Chinese, semi Chinese, and foreign. The College of the Two Lakes (Hupeh and Hunan) is rapidly assuming an air of completion, and with its circuit of some quarters and its fine lecture hall, is quite feature of the southern half of the city. The entrance examination was held a month or so ago, the subjects being the ordinary branches of classical larning, including twenty foundation scholarships of six taels a month and rooms, and five and twenty nonresident exhibitions of three tasks a month were awarded. A supplementary examination is becourse is to commence next month. It is unordinary rules and that its professors are to be an examining, not a teaching, body. The Survey Office has hitherto only made preparations for what it intends to do after the hot weather. A corps of twenty students has been selected who are to be trained in surveying and measuring methods and in finding longitude and latitude. In the present state of China it is obvious that these methods will necessarily be mere rules of thumb, but under the able superintandanoy of Mr. Beu, a thoroughly competen native mathematician, we may hope that some of these men will be awakened into real interest The survey of the Province probably commences in September.
